

Assessing the Career of an FBI Officer

Posted on September 12, 2018

Background

The core purpose of such a report is to assess comprehensively the role of FBI officers. With the growing impact of social and political activities under the shadow of social media and other aspects, crime rates and other critical issues are expanding at a rapid pace (Harris, P. M., & Keller, K. S. (2005). Since its inception in 1908 FBI is continuously committed to achieving excellence and ensuring safety and security of the state and also proves it a watchdog for the United States of America. Historically, such an agency was aimed at the development of national harmony and also ensuring the concerns of the state through reporting to the US intelligence community and also to the Director General of Intelligence. The FBI's organizational structure and its officers' roles include the intelligence, national security, information and technology, and human resource branches. Given the ranking of officers here at the FBI, the same can be explained uniquely as a special agent, senior special agent, supervisory special agent, or special agent in charge, and its management includes deputy assistant director, assistant director, deputy chief of staff, deputy director, and executive assistant director. The Attorney General of the USA has the power to appoint officials to identify and prosecute crimes that pose threats to the United States at any level. Such document will discuss various aspects in detail like emerging issues faced by FBI officers, education level required for FBI officers, training, duties and responsibilities, potential fringe benefits and perks and privileges, and prospects for employment as FBI officer, and these will provide a detailed analysis of information for the work (Burkett, 2013).

Emerging Issues:

The advent of security concerns and threats posed by international anti-state elements, like the presence of terrorist groups and their activities, have indeed created a sense of harassment and anxiety among the masses. These aspects, to a large extent, have allowed FBI management and its related entities to provide a comprehensive and sound-footed action plan so that the interests of the state can be gauged long-term. Since its inception, the FBI has proved detrimental in curbing various challenges, especially during the murder of US former president John F. Kennedy and thereafter during the civil rights movement in the USA, which not only proved instrumental in bringing change at a substantial level in the USA but also indeed proved mettle and competence of FBI officials in checking activities of anti-state elements effectively (Nakashima, E. (2007)). The role of FBI officials during the 1984 Olympics, which were held in Los Angeles and, in particular, during one of the most horrible incidents of the September 11 attacks, was raised at a substantial level that assured the country's administration that it could move at any level for the security and protection of interests of the state. During the eleven incident in 2001, the then FBI director Robert Muller considered revamping the whole structure of the FBI depending upon circumstances faced by it, and reports produced by it in collaboration with the CIA in 2004 on such horrific incidents provided sound recommendations so as to secure nation and foreign investors trust on the national security issues of the state. The head office of such agency is in Washington D.C., along with 56 field offices, and as per estimate, its staff members are above 50000, covering various domains like scientists, language specialists, information technology specialists, and professionals from various fields. For the time being, the USA is leading the world in the name of war against terrorism, and given such aspect, the role of the FBI and its team members has increased manifold at massive levels.

Necessary education, credential, and training:

To ensure a role as an FBI officer, it is mandatory for an individual one must hold four four-year degrees, and for the job, the age must be between 23 and 37 in accordance with the decision of the Department of State and Office of Personal Management eligible Veterans enjoy age limit up to 37. An applicant for a job in the FBI must hold citizenship of the USA, enjoy a sound moral character, and not be involved in criminal and other social activities at substantial levels. Apart from that, at least three years of working experience is mandatory before applying as an FBI officer. It is also detrimental to mention here the fact that in most cases, security clearance is required before being approved as an FBI officer through sensitive compartmented information, and the same is administered by the office of personnel management. For special agents, it is also a must that they pass a fitness test, and apart from that, various other requirements need to be fulfilled like physical tests, including a 300-meter run and the passing of a polygraph test. It is also notable to mention here that without passing such a test, any person cannot enjoy employment in the FBI at any level (Carter & Sapp, 1992).

Duties and responsibilities:

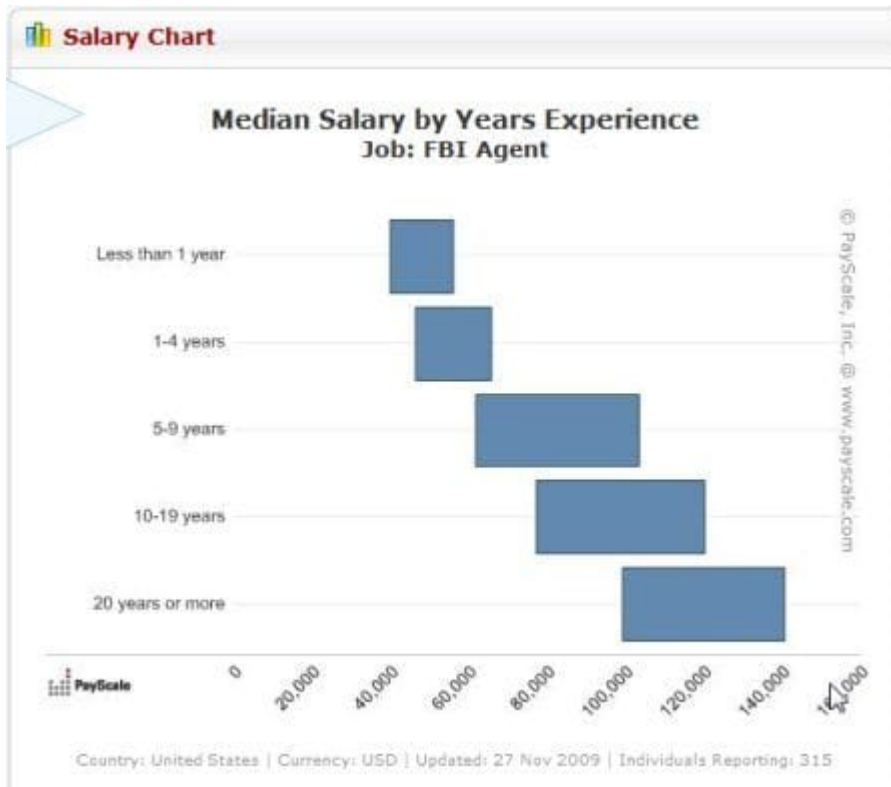

The job of FBI officers covers various aspects in a differentiated manner based on the structure that such board holds, the mindset of the attorney general, other state requirements, and vice versa. FBI agents are assumed to cover various duties, such as investigating bank robberies, cyber crime, drug activities, terrorism, and crimes that are conducted in a well-organized manner. Apart from that, FBI officials conduct investigations in more than 200 classifications of issues related to national security and federal law. FBI officers conduct all of the above-mentioned activities and render efficient and qualitative output for the state's best interest. Historically, they have proven their mettle across the country in a much-diversified manner. It is notable to mention here the fact that in the USA, drug activities are enormous in various states owing to the presence of people belonging to various nationalities and also those who always remain in search of opportunities to protect their Western interests. Special agents on behalf of the FBI also render services even across the corners of the world as and when they are deployed for tasks that are of a massive level and where security threats are huge for the USA and its people. Terrorism, corruption, drug abuse, and various other aspects also prevail in the USA, and in this regard, the role of deputy director, in-charge agent, supervisory special agent, and other prominent officials increase manifold depending upon the level of concern in the case.

FBI officers also render services in collaboration with law enforcement agencies of the state, like the Police, when they face difficulties in gathering information about drugs and other critical aspects that need the attention of public enforcement authorities. It is also detrimental to mention here the fact that during the Cold War with Russia, the Vietnam War, and the eleven incident, it was only owing to these FBI officials that the interest and security of the USA were secured from the menace of those who were able to prove them severe threats for the USA. During the Bush administration, after the Eleven incident, the role of FBI officers was tried to enhance too many other areas given the challenges faced by the country, and even the CIA, in strong collaboration with the FBI, proved instrumental in relieving the country from a state of anxiety and tension which were at its peak at that time enormously. FBI officials and field staff investigate activities and matters that come before them and also render technical and physical support to law enforcement agencies since it includes scientists, human resource specialists, and other personnel with expertise in their fields at comprehensive levels. Apart from that, FBI officials also undergo proper training and tough experiences at the initial stages, which enable them to prove their mettle in even the most challenging tasks in a comfortable manner. Terrorism and drug trafficking are very critical issues across the corners of the world, and since the USA holds prominence in economic and political activities therefore, most groups and anti-state elements moved for their hidden aims and given FBI officials prove themselves as guardians of values and interests related to the USA in an effective manner.

Starting and Potential Salaries:

As per available statistics from the table below, it has been estimated that the average salary of an FBI officer starts from $20000 on the scale and responsibilities enjoyed by an officer in that particular agency. Such a table provides a comprehensive analysis of the perks and salaries enjoyed by FBI officials (Burkett, R. (2013). State authorities and respective agencies mostly work in coordination with the FBI. Given this, the salary structure of FBI officers needs to be designed at a comprehensive level. Salary structure and other aspects are designed given FBI officers have kept all of the relevant aspects like job nature, multiple roles, and other aspects that demand continuous interaction at massive levels with various stakeholders of the society. Since its inception in 1908 FBI is continuously committed to achieving excellence and ensuring safety and security of the state and also proves it a watchdog for the United States of America. Historically, such an agency was aimed at the development of national harmony and also ensuring the concerns of the state through reporting to the US intelligence community and also to the Director General of Intelligence (Nakashima, 2007).

Employment Prognosis:

Since the FBI represents the USA as a security and investigative agency that possesses various aspects regarding job prospects and other opportunities for residents of the USA, those who seek a job in such an agency also have to undergo a tough process of selection, recruitment, training, and other aspects of continuing significance about a position as an FBI officer. The information mentioned below has been obtained from a reliable source containing job prospects about jobs in the FBI is one of the prestigious investigative agencies in the world, and its due role in the USA in collaboration with the CIA and other law enforcement agencies prevailing in the USA at substantial levels and vice versa. FBI is, in fact, an organization that includes medical professionals, scientists, human resource professionals, and director-level officials who keep an eye on aspects that pose threats to state security and also come under their defined areas of authority.

Summary:

FBI officers and those eager to join such organizations always possess a passion for serving the nation and protecting the state's interests at massive levels. The salary structure of these FBI officers is well defined and lucrative as compared to other public servants and such aspect is very interesting since after tough training and hiring criteria and also with a background of four years of bachelor degree a person joins such an organization so as to prove its mettle in terms of its loyalty for the nation and country in a diversified manner as part of FBI.

Occupational Summary:

FBI officers coordinate with other field officers and top management on a wide variety of technical and complex tasks to detect and conclude real results in matters under consideration regarding issues of national interest and matters of continuing significance (Lane, 2005).

Work Performed:

Work which is performed by FBI officers may include the following areas that can be summed up in the following manner:

- FBI officer coordinates and participates in various issues and activities that are directly or indirectly interrelated to issues of terrorism, corruption, and also drug trafficking across the corners of the world (Rothstein, 1986; Samarajiva, 1994).
- FBI agents come from various organizations like the army and navy, and it is also possible that they may be recruited by the police, which ensures their potential for the best interest of the country.
- FBI agents protect citizens as a primary responsibility from the menace of terrorism state citizens, and it is also possible that FBI agents are performing dual responsibilities at a time.
- FBI agents participate in programs and sessions arranged by the FBI in consultation with other agencies operating in the country to devise more productive plans and recommendations that can protect the interests of the people of the United States.
- FBI agents and officers also coordinate and evaluate their current performance with those of previous ones and maintain their highest level of bravery, integrity, and commitment to the collective well-being of the state.
- FBI officers coordinate the preparation of security controls and measures for the protection of citizens of the state and also put forward recommendations as appropriate in accordance with the situation like they did after the eleven incident when the USA was feeling very critical situation thus after 3 years of efforts in 2004 FBI presented a sound report containing security measures and recommendations that could prevent happening of such disastrous and horrific event again.
- FBI officers evaluate and analyze information gathered during their professional responsibilities regarding progress, accuracy, reliability, and timeliness and thus put forward appropriate recommendations in this regard in the country's best interest.
- They participate in the development of national security plans through available statistical information and other aspects of plans.
- Provide technical and critical guidance to other law enforcement agencies, such as police and lower-ranked officers in the FBI, and even consult the Federal Attorney and CIA in case the situation and matter are of a critical nature (McNally & Solomon, 1999).
- Participate in the development and implementation of national action plans as professional security officials and investigative experts, and they became prominent in a unique manner during the September 11 incident.

- Act as a person by the line of action and plan devised by senior officials of the FBI. Performance of monitoring, safety, and other security practices to comply with both internal and external rules and regulations for the protection of citizens of the USA.
- Maintain a professional level of competence and skills by training requirements and other aspects so that in the course of professional implementation of obligations same can render the highest level of output and thus ensure the sound image of FBI as an organization and also the state of USA.
- FBI officer also maintains the flow of work during the performance of obligations by standards defined by internal and external stakeholders.
- During professional obligations, FBI officers also render quality output to protect citizens' interests and utilize the maximum available physical and technical resources for that purpose.
- FBI officers communicate with other professional law enforcers in a very cooperative and sound manner to gather information and evidence, which can prove instrumental in them arriving at suitable conclusions necessary for the achievement of the target as defined by them (Whetstone, 2000).
- Interact with various agencies and organizations, Such as the Federal attorney, the police department, and other agencies, to gain information regarding work done and to be done about the matter under consideration.
- Participate in the investigative process and review reports produced by other law enforcement agencies, thus putting forward appropriate recommendations in this regard.
- FBI officers also render appropriate solutions and recommendations for the interpretation, evaluation, and investigation of quality results and other aspects associated with matters of continuing significance (Headquarters et al., 2009).
- They also perform obligations and duties related to the situations they face.
- FBI officers have to move around the country to assist with criminal activities (Harris & Keller, 2005).
- They are also considered as responsible for presenting themselves in a court of law in case courts consult them depending upon the gravity of the situation.
- In most cases, they have to perform office and fieldwork in a parallel manner since they are part of the most critical organization, the FBI. They also keep eagle eyes on suspicious and other persons with malicious intent.

Knowledge, Skills, and Abilities:

FBI officers and agents are supposed to achieve a certain level of knowledge and also maintain skills and abilities during professional responsibilities, and these can be explained in the following manner:

- A bachelor's degree in law, criminology, criminal justice, and other subjects related to that profession is considered mandatory for working as an FBI officer.

- FBI officers are also required to clear special agent examinations and apart from that any officers working in other organizations can be called at FBI on deputation basis through coordination of top officials of both organizations.

Conclusion:

FBI is one of the most prestigious organizations in the USA and is considered responsible for protecting the citizens of the USA. It also acts in coordination with other agencies like the CIA and the Attorney General at the Federal level. Since its inception in 1908, it has achieved tremendous and marvelous output, all of which is owing to the commitment and will of its officials and even agents to render their best for the nation in a comprehensive manner.

Works Cited:

- {1} Headquarters, F. B. I., Terrorists, M. W., Kidnappings, P., Crimes, W. C., & Schemes, C. F. (2009). Forensic hair comparison: background information for interpretation. Forensic Science Communications, 11(2).
- {2} Harris, P. M., & Keller, K. S. (2005). Ex-offenders need not apply The criminal background checks in hiring decisions. Journal of Contemporary Criminal Justice, 21(1), 6-30.
- {3} Nakashima, E. (2007). FBI prepares a vast database of biometrics. Washington Post, 22, 2007.
- {4} Rothstein, L. F. (1986). Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act: Emerging issues for colleges and universities. JC & UL, 13, 229.
- {5} Samarajiva, R. (1994). Privacy in electronic public space: Emerging issues. Canadian Journal of Communication, 19(1), 87.
- {6} Carter, D. L., & Sapp, A. D. (1992). College education and policing: Coming of age. FBI L. Enforcement Bull., 61, 8.
- {7} Whetstone, T. S. (2000). Getting stripes: Educational achievement and study strategies used by sergeant promotional candidates. American Journal of Criminal Justice, 24(2), 247-257.
- {8} Lane, T. (2005). Personal and departmental benefits of continuing education: the FBI National Academy experience. FBI L. Enforcement Bull., 74, 1.
- {9} Burkett, R. (2013). An alternative framework for agent recruitment: From mice to rascals.
- {10} McNally, V. J., & Solomon, R. M. (1999). The FBI's critical incident stress management program. FBI L. Enforcement Bull., 68, 20.